The national defense plans of the Administration, calling for an expenditure in the next fiscal year of more than $400,000,000 for army, navy and fortifications, were completed today. Secretary Garrison has forwarded his estimates, already approved by President Wilson, to the Secretary of the Treasury, and Secretary Daniels submitted his estimates this afternoon, after going over the final details with President Wilson. Daniels discussed with the President the question of how many battleships, battle cruisers and smaller warships to recommend each year during the five years for which a programme has been mapped out. He and the Prestdent reached an agreement, but the Secretary said he could not give the figures until later. It was learned however, that the expenditures will be distributed as evenly as possible over the five years. The plans of the navy, Secretary

Daniels admitted, include a large building programme. He said he
